Euro trip flak

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The recent Cohasset High School trip to Europe upset a few parents, who came to the May 7 School Committee meeting to complain that their children were ill prepared to take AP exams and the SAT after the trip.

A few parents told the school board they were upset that substitute teachers showed videos to the students who remained in Cohasset during the nearly two-week trip (from April 13 to 26), led by Social Studies teacher James Willis, when the students could have been studying for tests.

Around 50 students and seven teachers went on the European trip; some of the teachers taught AP classes, leaving a group of parents to ask the school committee to prevent such a long trip so close to test time in the future.

Maureen McElgunn said that having students take the AP exams within two weeks of coming back from Europe was poor practice, adding that it had a "major impact" on both the kids who traveled and those who stayed home. Not least of which is the "financial impact to families," McGlynn added, if students test well enough to proficiency out of college classes.

McElgunn further stated that it's unfair to allow such a long trip when normally taking students out of school for an extended period of time is difficult.

"If I pulled my kids out for 10 days before exams, would their teachers have provided

Putting the pieces together

Cohasset designer
launches fall line

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Summer may be just around the corner, but in the fashion world, spring is the time to showcase fall designs.

Cohasset-based fashion designer Robert Merton, owner and founder of Alistair Archer, is right on time with his new line of trench coats, umbrellas, and customized Wellington rain boots.

And while the collection is technically for fall, the designs are meant to be worn for at least three seasons.

"One of the things I'm trying to do with the line is provide products that can be worn in different seasons and times of day," said Merton. "You can mix and match prints and colors and create your desired level of coordination. The colors are all made to coordinate."

Like Merton's trademark designs, the new trenches and boots come in various abstract prints, inspired by his own paintings. It was experimenting with acrylic painting on canvas that gave Merton his start as an artist, trading in a high-profile financial job in Manhattan for the work-from-home creative business life.

Alistair Archer launched in 2011 after Merton spent a few years as a gallery painter, traveling to show

RED LION

Another new manager hired

Second GM in two months

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

One week after the Red Lion Inn's most recent general manager John Cowden quit, a new manager has been hired - Heinrich Lutjens of Belmont, Mass. Lutjens started working at the inn on Monday, May 12.

Lutjens worked as general manager of the Harvard University Faculty Club from 1990 to 2010, previously managing the Warwick Hotel in Houston, Texas. In his resume, Lutjens says that he brings to the job years of hospitality industry experience, European training and a proven track record of member satisfaction.

The Board of Selectmen was poised to vote on the inn's liquor license last week when Cowden quit unexpectedly. At the time the board had no one to appoint license holder in the manager's place, although the inn proposed employee John Murray, who has worked at the inn since January, as interim.

Cowden was hired to work at the Red Lion following frequent turnover in management, and started the position in March. He told the Mariner in April that he was aware of the establishment's rocky past, including the need for police presence at outdoor weddings, but said that he felt the issues were "easy fixes."

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy noted that Lutjens must undergo the same background checks that the police department conducted on Cowden before he could be approved as license holder. Kennedy asked Town Manager Chris Senior to keep the board updated on the matter.

Billing issue

The manager position isn't the only one that has had a high turnover at the inn; a revolving door of bookkeepers at the inn has meant bills being left unpaid.

The police department reported last week that the Red Lion Inn owes the town nearly $12,000 in police detail wages for officers assigned to weddings and similar events.

Acting Police Chief William Quigley said in an email to the Town Manager's office that collecting the funds has been a challenge due to the turnover in bookkeeping over the past year.

Last year's Town Meeting put mechanisms in place to help town departments recover money owed from entities in town that require professional licenses or permits from the town. Licenses and permits can now be withheld pending payment of outstanding bills or taxes, according to the acting chief.

Quigley said in an email Tuesday that he thinks the matter will soon be resolved.

"We are working closely with the latest bookkeeper at the Red Lion Inn, and I am 100 percent confident that these delinquent bills will be settled."

POLICE BEAT

Passenger not allowed on back of motorcycle

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Motorcycle

On Monday (May 5) at 6:44 p.m., a Jerusalem Road resident reported that a blue-and-white motorcycle was racing up and down the street. The motorcyclist was described as a man with a black helmet with a Mohawk on the top of it. A female passenger was riding on the back.

Police located the motorcycle and its operator on Atlantic Avenue near Cunningham Bridge. The operator was operating on a permit for this type of vehicle but was not allowed to carry passengers. The cycle, a blue 2000 Yamaha YZFR6, was towed and the operator cited for unlicensed operation. The operator and passenger were transported to headquarters to make arrangements.

Police explained that a motorcycle permit does not allow operation with a passenger; it is a violation of a license restriction and therefore, the operator is considered unlicensed.

Oxycodone

On Monday (May 5) around 10:09 a.m., officers were dispatched to the Harbor View, a local nursing care facility off Route 3A, for a reported theft of narcotics. The director of the facility reported that prescribed blister packets of oxycodone were taken and replaced with packets of Claritin over a several week period. The head pharmacist confirmed that the packets had been cut open and pills replaced. Cohasset detectives are actively investigating.

Sent on way

On Monday (May 5) at 11:50 a.m., a motorist traveling on Ripley Road noticed two men, who were acting suspiciously, were looking into driveways and vehicles. Police officers on scene identified the men as 61-year-old Elm Street resident and a 63-year-old resident of Chief Justice Cushing Highway, who were looking for a jobsite nearby. They were sent on their way, police said.

Two-car MVA

At 3:10 p.m. on Monday (May 5), police officers were dispatched to a two-car accident on Ripley Road at the Post Office. Units on scene reported a 2005 Chevy, operated by an 88-year-old Cohasset man, was pulling into a spot inside the parking lot and made contact with a parked 2012 Ford Edge, owned by a 66-year-old Cohasset man. There was minor damage and no injuries reported.

Erratic operation

At 6:12 p.m. on Monday (May 5), dispatch received a call from a Hingham resident reporting an erratic vehicle, a black 2001 Chevrolet Cavalier, traveling south on Route 3A into Cohasset. This vehicle was crossing over the yellow lines and weaving. The caller stayed on the line, following the car, and officers were able to find the vehicle parked at the Deer Hill School.

The caller told police the operator exited the vehicle with what appeared to be pizza boxes. Police said the 57-year-old Norwell woman, who drove the Cavalier, checked out and was not impaired.

Gunshots heard

On Monday (May 5) at 11:56 p.m., dispatch received numerous 911 calls from the area of Beechwood Street reporting hearing gunshots. Officers on scene detained three men: a 24-year-old from Scituate; a 23-year-old from Weymouth; and a 23-year-old from Cohasset. A 50-year-old Cohasset woman, who lives in a nearby home, described hearing two pops. While looking out her window, she observed a heavyset man operating a white SUV get out and be confronted by three men.

Callers reported a white SUV fleeing toward Scituate. Scituate police sent officers to assist. The men, who were detained, claimed the noise was fireworks and were uncooperative with officers, police said. No bullet casings or holes were found after an extensive search. Surrounding towns were notified to be on the lookout for a white SUV, operated by a heavyset man. Detectives returned later the next day to further investigate and search the area. This is still an active investigation, police said.

Gunshots heard

On Wednesday (May 7) at 5:45 p.m., a caller from Locust Road reported hearing gunshots. Officers on scene reported finding nothing in the neighborhood. The Scituate Rod and Gun Club was having skeet practice at the time but it is unclear if that was related, police said.

Loud banging

On Wednesday (May 7), at 10:57 p.m., a Jerusalem Road resident reported hearing loud banging coming from the third floor of their residence. Officers on scene report nothing found.

No larceny

On Thursday (May 8) at 1:50 p.m., a walk-in to police lobby reports a possible larceny. Officers interviewed the victim and discover that AV equipment had been taken from the St. Anthony's Parish Hall. Upon further investigation, the equipment was legally borrowed for an event at a venue in town. No crime occurred, police said.

Erratic driver

On Thursday (May 8) at 6:43 p.m., dispatch received a call for an erratic vehicle, a blue 2008 Toyota Tacoma pickup truck traveling south on Route 3A. The caller reported the pickup then parked in front of Curtis Liquors with an elderly man exiting that look confused. Police located an 84-year-old Scituate man inside the store who was operating the truck. He was not feeling well and was transported home by a friend; his truck was secured in the parking lot, police said.

Harassing calls

On Friday (May 9) at 11:42 a.m., a 61-year-old Sohier Street resident walked into the police lobby, a to report receiving repeated harassing phone calls. The desk officer assisted the victim in obtaining a case number, required for a phone provider to put a trace on a line. The number was blocked on the caller's phone ID. Verizon was working with the customer on this matter, police said.

Van OK

On Friday (May 9) at 1:06 p.m., a resident of Wood Way called dispatch to report that a van was in her neighbor's driveway that she did not recognize. Officers on scene were able to verify the homeowner was home and they knew the male operator.

Hang up

On Friday (May 9) at 7:38 p.m., a Lamberts Lane resident called dispatch requesting to speak with an officer. The caller refused to give her location and hung up. Officers on scene verified the caller was OK.

Checked out

On Friday (May 9) at 7:56 p.m., dispatch received a call about a man sitting in his car near the turf fields at the high school. The caller reported that the man was smoking cigarettes and drinking beer. Officers on scene located a 2006 Hyundai occupied by 55-year-old Norwell man. He was waiting for his son to finish the game. No alcohol was involved, police said.

Sent on way

On Saturday (May 10) at 2:52 a.m., an officer on patrol encountered four young adults walking on Ripley Road. All four were from Cohasset, and ranged in age from 22 to 28. All checked out and were sent on their way.

Silencing cell phones floated

Selectman Martha Gjestebj wants her fellow board members to silence their cell phones during meetings. Gjestebj pointed out during the Monday, May 12 selectmen meeting that communicating on one's cell phone during a public meeting without sharing the information publicly "should be brought to the attention of the board."

Gjestebj added that she leaves her phone home during meetings.

Selectmen vice-chair Steve Gaumer said that while he can appreciate the sentiment, he must leave his cell phone on to receive messages from his children and business clients.

Gaumer added that he always keeps his phone on the selectmen's desk, clearly visible to his fellow board members.

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said that the matter should be placed on a future board agenda, adding that she's discussed the matter with Town Counsel in the past, and not all communications on a board member's cell phone is considered public information.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Pledging allegiance

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said during the Monday, May 12 meeting that from now on, she would like to have the pledge of allegiance spoken at the beginning of selectmen meetings.

"We're one of the few towns that doesn't do it," Kennedy said of having Cohasset selectmen take the pledge.

The pledge is spoken at the beginning of every Cohasset School Committee meeting. The selectmen have yet to vote on the issue.

Candidates reflect on Saturday's Election

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

After several weeks of campaigning, three races came to a close on Saturday during the annual Town Election.

Diane Kennedy and Kevin McCarthy came out on top in the three-way Board of Selectmen race, besting incumbent Fred Koed. Incumbent Sewer Commissioner Wayne Sawchuk held onto his seat, beating out challenging James Gilman. Another incumbent also stayed put: Virginia Laugelli Najmi of the Housing Authority won against challenger Beverly McAlister Koswick.

The Mariner asked each candidate to share what they have taken away from the campaign experience, win or lose, and what they would like to say to their opponents.

Selectmen

Diane Kennedy, who was re-elected to a second three-year term on the Board of Selectmen, said that campaigning has taught her to keep an eye on the prize.

"Much like serving in office, you need to keep focused on the ultimate goal and register, but don't respond to, distractions," said Kennedy.

Newcomer Kevin McCarthy said that while he was happy to win a selectman seat, he was equally pleased with the amount of citizen engagement in the election.

"Many voters became actively aware of the issues and became involved in the political process by helping out in the campaigns or simply by voting for the first time in a municipal election," said McCarthy. "If this trend of active new voter interest and participation continues, then I believe the political climate in Cohasset will change and our overall civic life will greatly benefit."

Fred Koed, who was running for his sixth selectmen term, said that he leaves the campaign trail with high hopes for the future of Cohasset.

"Cohasset is a great town that is headed in the right direction," Koed said. "There are a lot of changes coming but I have confidence that Town Manager Chris Senior and the Board of Selectmen will do a great job."

Koed added that win or lose, he enjoys both the campaigned and election process. "I love elections and witnessing democracy in action is always exhilarating, even when the results don't go your way."

Kennedy distinguished between campaigning and Election Day itself. "Election day is fun," she said. "It is always good to see so many people out and about and very reaffirming to see the enthusiasm with which people vote. Campaigning, however, is exhausting and very draining."

"Exhausted" is a word McCarthy also used to describe the process, adding that he was also exhilarated. The newly elected selectmen said he hopes that other town citizens will think of running for office. "It really is a lot of fun and at a bare minimum, you are a much better and knowledgeable citizen for the experience."

All three selectmen candidates had kind words for one another.

Kennedy said that she enjoyed working with Koed and valued "his incredible knowledge," praising him for having "admirably and selflessly served Cohasset for over 25 years." She also looks forward to working with McCarthy "and having his insight and leadership on the board."

Koed's message to both of his opponents was to thank them "for standing up to serve the town."

"It isn't always easy," Koed added. "But it's very rewarding."

McCarthy thanked Koed for his "years of dedicated service" and said he considers him to be a friend. "I hope to continue the positive and productive dialogues we have enjoyed in the past."

The newest selectman said he looks forward to serving alongside Kennedy, and congratulated her on an "impressive" campaign.

Both Kennedy and McCarthy shared some goals they have for their terms.

Kennedy, who was elected selectmen chair by the rest of the board during their Monday night meeting, said that she is "anxious to advance the policy and long-range planning discussions" the board has started having. She also wants to work with the Town Manager on a town Master Plan.

Overall, Kennedy wanted to express gratitude toward her constituents "for the support and confidence in my abilities." The selectmen chair added that she is "very optimistic about the possibilities for this board and the town."

McCarthy would like to help the selectmen "set a very positive and productive political and civic tone for our community."

He also wants to get the ball rolling on the budget process earlier this coming fiscal year, "and involve the voices of all relevant and/or interested parties such as the town departments, schools, the elder community and the business community, amongst many others."

Looking back on his years of service, Koed said he hoped that he "made a positive contribution" to the town.

He thanked citizens for allowing him to serve on various boards, from the Housing Authority to the Advisory Committee, Water Commission, and finally selectmen.

When asked if he would consider running for office again, Koed said that he plans to take a moment's pause.

"I've been privileged to serve Cohasset for 27 years on various boards and committees," said Koed. "I'm going to take some time to reflect and to consider the next step."

Housing Authority

The women who ran for seats on the Housing Authority experienced two different types of campaigns. The race's victor, incumbent Virginia Laugelli Najmi, said her experience was positive and laid-back.

"My own campaign was low-key and depended on my experience as an incumbent as well as past work experience," she said. "I had a 'what-will-be-will-be' outlook and wasn't at all stressed for myself."

On Election Day, the 72-year-old said she was thrilled "that I can still stand for 10 hours!"

The day itself was "invigorating," Najmi added. "It made me feel like a real native again... I came away hoping Cohasset voters will increasingly interest themselves in all aspects of town government as opposed to one or two."

Beverly McAlister Koswick, the challenger, said that she experienced the opposite, saying that her chief takeaway from campaigning is "the awful attitude of some people."

Koswick said that she was verbally attacked by one woman who said there was "no need" to run for the position. And she wasn't the only one who dealt with this, Koswick added.

"There are a lot of changes coming but I have confidence that Town Manager Chris Senior and the Board of Selectmen will do a great job."

Fred Koed

"Negative remarks were made about other candidates as well. I was shocked. It surprised me that this was possible in a town like Cohasset."

Koswick's view of Election Day was "mixed," she said, noting that the day held both "sunshine and rain, a lot of smiling faces and some not."

Still, Koswick had only good things to say about her opponent, congratulating Najmi on the win and encouraging her to "continue the good work you have done." She added that she and Najmi spoke after the election on how Koswick might be able to contribute to the housing authority in the future. Despite the bad experience, Koswick said she might run again.

Najmi confirmed that she encouraged Koswick to stay involved in elder issues in town, particularly at the elder housing community at 60 Elm St. "There is a lot to do that needs community participation," said Najmi, adding that she let Koswick know what the needs are.

Now, Najmi, who served in an unfilled seat for two years, is prepared to start a full five-year term. She shared her goals and how she hopes to accomplish them.

"In addition to maintaining and enhancing the 60 Elm St property, I would like to see us exchange ideas with others in town on how best to create still-needed affordable housing in Cohasset and to help increase the town's awareness and support of elder affairs and needs which today receive about a half of 1 percent of the town's budget."

Her plan to tackle these things is simple, said Najmi. "I'll be working at it every week."

Sewer

The two men who ran for a single Sewer Commissioner had some advice for one another following Saturday's results.

The victor, incumbent Wayne Sawchuk, encouraged opponent James Gilman to remain involved, and "participate the best you can, attend meetings, study the job and run [for sewer commission] again. We need good candidates to serve our town boards who are willing to work hard."

Meanwhile, Gilman asked that Sawchuk "do a good job for the town."

Gilman said that while he found campaigning to be an overall positive experience, like Koswick he experienced backlash.

"Several people were very critical that I was even running. My running was seen as an attack on my opponent," said Gilman. "I cannot understand that logic. There were only a few offices that were even contested; that does not do justice to the process or to the voters. In the last week there were also a fair number of personal attacks, there is no place in town elections for that type of campaigning."

Gilman said that he feels the negativity affects voter turnout and participation, adding that town must leave personality out of politics and "stick to the issues."

The challenger said that otherwise, campaigning was a positive experience. "Even though I did not win I feel the results were very positive. I met some great people and developed some good friendships," Gilman added that he will "maybe" run again.

Sawchuk was happy with his victory. "I put on my best campaign ever, and had more cooperation and well wishes along the way than ever anticipated."

However, the sewer commissioner has no plans to rest on his laurels, pledging to "continue working with our terrific team to study the needs for sewer critical remaining areas of the town to solve their existing pollution problems, without using existing capacity to expand to new developments in sewer areas."

Sawchuk had well wishes for Gilman and his family. "I appreciated that he was willing to run for office, and wish him well going forward. He ran a good campaign, and he and his campaign workers were courteous and friendly to me, and he wished me well, and I offer the same to him."

rooms both nationally and internationally. Eventually he was inspired to take his paintings from canvas to textiles, using digital printing technology to make it possible.

The fashion line is named after Merton's two sons - Alistair, 3, and Archer, 9, - with his wife, Heather. Their oldest son is ultimately the reason the brand was founded; after he was born prematurely in 2004, Merton decided to leave the world of high finance behind, relocate his family to Cohasset, and focus on his artwork.

The company has started to take off over the past few years, with Merton showcasing his designs at local fashion events like Style Week in Providence and Arts Week in Boston. Merton said he's excited for the direction the line is heading in.

"Alistair Archer is really beginning to roll out a central core line," from dresses, tunics and scarves to the new trenches, boots, and other accessories. While Merton enjoys sending his looks down the runway, he also likes to share how the brand has evolved from paintings to a ready-to-wear clothing line.

Coming up in June at Boston's Langham Hotel is a 24-look runway show and popup shop for the brand. In September, the line will show at the Liberty Hotel in Boston. Before that, Alistair Archer will be back at Style Week Providence in August. "There are a lot of things coming along," said Merton, adding that he's "been very busy."

"One of the things I'm trying to do with the line is provide products that can be worn in different seasons and times of day."

Next, Merton plans to take his designs on the road, attending trade shows across the country. "It's a very big step to go from a small, local and regional business and begin the process of rolling out an entire line on a national level," he said.

The new range of coats and boots is one of Merton's newest developments. With four different lengths to choose from, from jackets to dusters and a 12-button military style coat, creating customized looks is a breeze. The trenches are also available in different fabrics, including 100 percent polyester-twill that is both wind-resistant and water-proof, and nylon raincoats. All of the coats are fully lined with contrasting prints on the inside.

Like Merton's other designs, the print patterns come straight from his paintings. While mixing prints is on-trend, Merton insists that the wearer doesn't need to go overboard with a head-to-toe "matchy-matchy" ensemble.

"It doesn't have to be overwhelming," he said, adding that while his prints are contrasting, the colors are complimentary and "don't clash" when mixed together. An orange abstract jacket will match a pair of blue boots, because both prints share a shot of bright pink, for example.

While most prints are abstract, Merton also has fun experimenting with plaids, lending a preppy vibe that's quite New England friendly, grounding the more whimsical patterns.

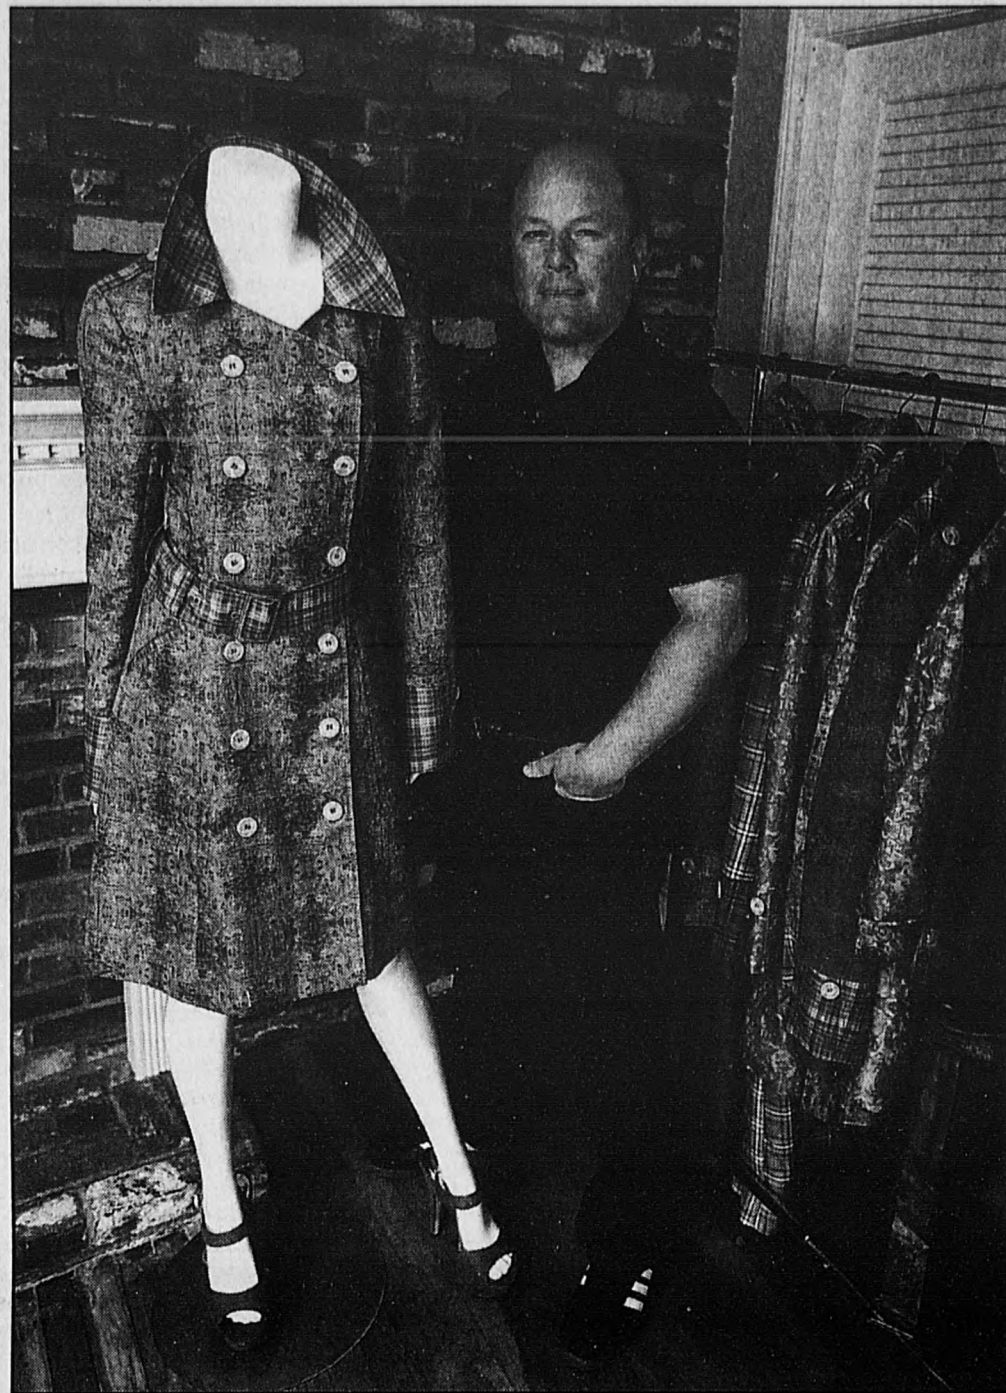

Merton likes patterns that play well off of each other and harmonize well together, yet aren't "exactly the same."

Layering a long trench coat over a cashmere tunic, Merton demonstrated, "I feel like they fit together."

Some styles are available for purchase now; the rest will be available to purchase online in six weeks. For more on Alistair Archer, and to view the Fall 2014 ready-to-wear collection, visit www.alistairarcher.com.

Hanabury & Sons ~ Established 1958

More than five decades ago, three young men enjoying the last skiing weekend of the season discussed future plans. Walter Nelson wished to move to California, but was hesitant to leave his dad Carl alone to operate his small part-time paving business.

The two other men, Bruce Merrill and Dick Hanabury, decided it might be a good idea to purchase Carl's business, which consisted of a homemade asphalt roller and an old Dodge® dump truck for the pricey sum of $2,000 ($600 down and the rest paid in monthly installments).

At the end of the first paving season, the profit was just enough to buy a pair of Head™ skis for Bruce and Dick. Bruce had enough and sold his share to Dick. Carl decided to stay on and help the newly-named company, Hanabury & Sons, Inc., and his quasi-adopted son Dick, build a successful paving company.

In 1977, the company was incorporated and, in 1983, Mark Hanabury joined the firm in a full-time capacity subsequent to his college graduation. Mark's addition proved to be a huge impetus for the business' growth in volume and quality.

The firm is a long-time member of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has been consulted by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office on driveway standards, and has participated in Home & Garden® TV demonstrations and driveway construction.

Bruce later founded the successful Mid Cape Roofing Company and Walter started the Silicon Valley company Crystal Tech.

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Mother Nature

Hi Cohasset, how are all of you this week? Mother Nature is at it again, playing tricks a bit and keeping each day a surprise. LIFE AT CHS

Only one week to go!

MATTHEW MACCORMACK

Five days. Thirty-four hours.

That is all the time that Cohasset High's Class of 2014 has left to spend in the classrooms of 143 Pond Street. For those of us who have grown up in town, our 13 years of schooling in the 02025 have dwindled down to a final week. Exciting, surreal, strange, bitter-sweet; you could describe the emotions with any of a plethora of adjectives.

Next week will mark the ultimate week of classes for Cohasset seniors, as all CHS elder statesmen will be formally dismissed from their academic endeavors on Friday, May 23. At the beginning of the year, it looked as if students would stay in classes until May 30th, as there are laws pertaining to how long students can be out before their graduation. However, due to efforts of the Student Council and of course Principal Connolly, the week after Memorial Day (beginning on the 27th) will be a little unconventional for seniors. I will detail more as said week unfolds, but rather than be in classes with the curriculum entirely complete, seniors will be out doing community service and enjoying the last few days with each other.

And now that AP Exams have completed as of today, all of Cohasset's seniors can truly visualize the year's end. After two weeks of Advanced Placement exams, with students testing their mastery in anything from Computer Science to Spanish to Economics, many Cohasset students can breathe a collective sigh of relief. Lots of hard work has been put in all year to prepare, and students should be proud. As of last year, students taking exams no longer need to spend the rest of the day in classes before or after taking their exam (exams can start at either 8 a.m. or noon), so the reward for many CHSers is a mid afternoon trip to lunch after an exam is completed, or a pre-exam breakfast power-up excursion. No matter the ritual, Cohasset's AP Students are glad to be done with their exams. Although AP classes continue, workloads generally tend to lighten.

For all of Cohasset's non-seniors, there is still plenty to look forward to in the last month of school. This coming weekend, members of the Concert Band and Chorus will take a bite out of the Big Apple, as they head to our nation's cultural capital for their annual musical excursion. This year, instead of competing against other schools, the groups will be lucky enough to work with some NYU music professors to help fine tune their skills. In addition, students will indulge in opportunities such as a Broadway show, Rockefeller Center, and the famous restaurant of celebrity chef Guy Fieri. Back at 143 Pond, The Spinaker staff is hard at work finishing their final issue, and several spring sports teams have achieved incredible success so far.

Hope everyone has a great weekend, and I look forward to reporting to you all up until graduation! Oh, and remember, keep it classy Cohasset.

Matthew McCormack is a senior at CHS and a regular contributor to the Cohasset Mariner.

GIMME SHELTER

Sisters are too cute for words

PAULA J. FATERSIK

It's the "morning team"! Ten weeks old and full of fun and energy, Oatmeal and Waffle are two sweet sisters who will be thrilled to have a special family fall in love with them. These tuxedo cuties may be sisters, but like any siblings, they have totally unique and lovable personalities.

With an upside down heart on her face, Oatmeal is ready to fall for you and give you her brand of kitten love. She is a playful and curious little girl who looks first and then jumps into whatever action she finds amusing. Bright white whiskers and wide eyes complete her classic tuxedo patterned fur. It will be an adventure for her when she begins here new life with a loving family.

Waffle is just as sweet and totally adventurous. You are likely to see her run and pounce on just about any moving thing. She is mischievous and quite fond of sneaking up on her sister and disturbing a peaceful rest or observation time. Definitely full of life, Waffle will bring smiles and laughter as she cavorts around. Her signature white mustache makes you smile at the first glance. Waffle is very attached to her sister and together they are a magical pair.

As Spring turns into Summer, we will continue to see more litters coming to the shelter and into our foster homes. This is a time when we hope to help as many kittens and cats as possible to be able to live a safe and secure life, off the streets, out of danger, and out of harms way. These precious babies have no say when they are left abandoned, or become separated from their moms. Hull Seaside is hoping to place each and every one in the most caring and loving homes. When these little ones start out alone, it takes awhile to develop trust and when we watch them leave for the best forever homes, it is somewhat of a loss, as we love each of them, but definitely a joyful time knowing that they will have a chance to be loved and treated like the awesome kids they are.

And it isn't just all about the kittens. We have so many deserving cats who have been through some very tough times and they need caring, patient and understanding owners to nurture them and let them enjoy a home on their terms.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information on these two sweeties, Oatmeal and Waffle. They are a bundle of fun and entertainment and need a caring and loving home to grow up in. Hours of fun and amusement are in store for their new family.

Our regular Open Hours are Monday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and Saturdays from 2-3 p.m. Appointments can also be arranged with Judy, our adoption coordinator if needed. Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is located at 50 L St. in Hull so please come by to visit.

OUR VIEW

Election reflection

We want to congratulate all the candidates – opposed and unopposed – in Saturday's Town Election. It takes courage and determination, as well as a deep caring about Cohasset to toss one's hat into the ring and run for office.

We believe contests between and among candidates for a particular office are healthy. The best way to air issues is when there is a debate among those seeking office.

As an aside earlier this week, we caught a part of a debate on WATD among the candidates for selectman in the Town of Hanson. What caught our "ear" was that one of the candidates was adamant that the role of a selectman is not to take sides on any issue. The hot issue there is the proposal to build a new school – the other candidates in the debate were either for or against the project.

We had to smile because we knew the non-committal candidate would never survive in Cohasset where taking sides is part of our nature and politics are not always positive.

With that being said, we thought this particular election was a positive one for the most part. The police log was not peppered with complaints about campaign yard signs being stolen or vandalized and in our view, there did not appear to be any last minute "dirty tricks" as has been the case in some past elections.

In the end, whether bullet voting played a role in the selectman's race is something that those who analyze election results can debate. There were 596 "blanks" in the selectman's race, which was the "hot" race this year – so it appears to us that a good number of voters only voted for one candidate not two.

We also want to join the chorus in thanking Fred Koed for his many years of service to Cohasset. We started covering Fred when he was serving on the Water Commission in the early 90s. When he did not seek reelection for that position – we recall him saying that he wanted time to do other things. A few years later, he ran for his first term on the Board of Selectmen, a seat he held until last Saturday.

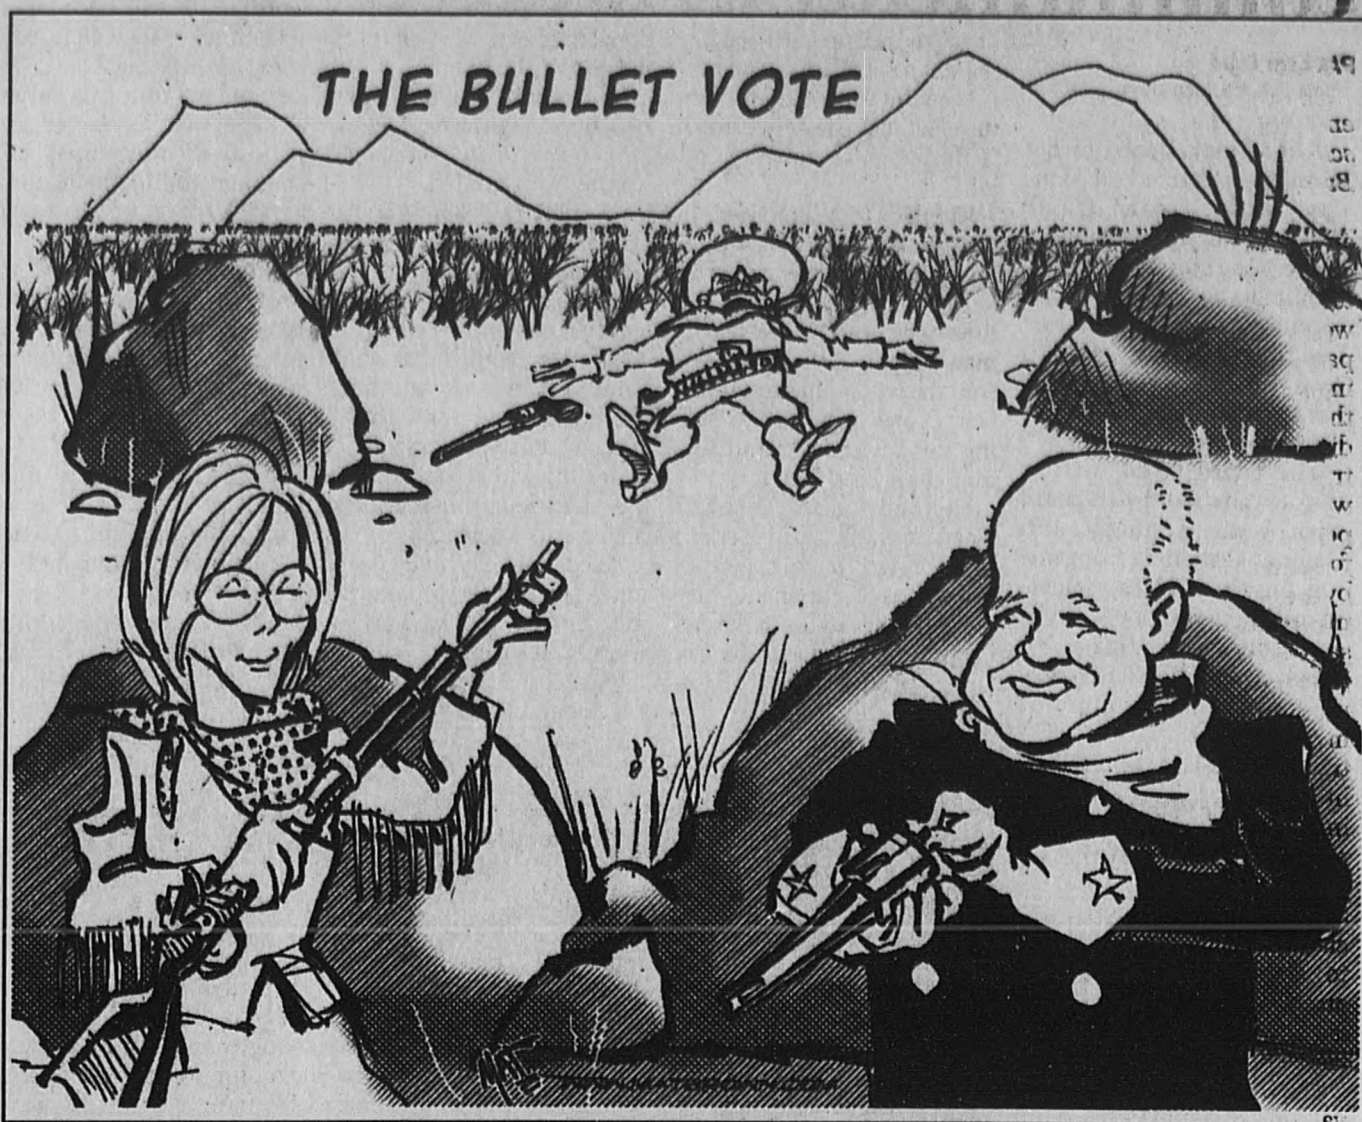

We hope that after Fred takes time to reflect – he will remain involved in the town. He is certainly a great resource for any town or state official, for that matter.

We were at the polls on Saturday night when the results came in. All day election "watchers" sat at tables on both sides of the front of the auditorium at Town Hall keeping track. Fred was out campaigning, but at 6 p.m. he was inside the auditorium anxiously waiting for the news with the rest of us. Like all the candidates and their supporters – no one knew what the results would be.

When the results were announced, it was clear that Fred was disappointed. But he stayed around, shaking hands with citizens and other candidates in the room. We wish him well.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bullet voting nothing new

I remember bullet voting's being mentioned in my childhood in the 1960s when my mother served on the school committee and subsequently when my father was a sewer commissioner. Of course, bullet voting has "a place in Cohasset!" If it is seen as a scare tactic, then that is my voting choice under this democratic system. Why on Earth should I vote for a second candidate when there is only one I favor and wish to have in office?

Mary Stanton Hynes,
30 Clay Spring Road

I am eager to help you as so many have helped me.

I congratulate Diane Kennedy on her well-deserved re-election. I very much look forward to serving on the board with her and to her leadership as our new Chair. Finally, I thank Fred Koed for his many years of dedicated, professional service to our town – characterized by a well-deserved reputation for integrity and love for our community.

Kevin McCarthy, 155 Fair Oaks Lane

Fairness and fees for Little Harbor District

In the May 8th Cohasset Mariner the incumbent, and now newly re-elected, sewer commissioner said this about how new sewer connection fees the Town collects are utilized: "It is my position that the most fiscally responsible approach is to save the new fees to fund future capital repairs and upgrades." It sounds like a very commendable position.

However, retaining money that does not rightfully belong to you could be called an inappropriate appropriation of funds. The fees collected from new properties connecting to the Little Harbor Sewer District do not belong to the Town. They belong to the residents of the Little Harbor Sewer District who paid the entire cost of the sewer and treatment plant upgrade. The Town did not contribute to the District's construction and has no claim to the connection fees. Had properties requesting sewer connections in the District at this time or in the future been connected to the sewer at the time of its construction, they would have contributed to the cost of the construction and in that way reduced the cost to the other residents. Accordingly, when they connect after the fact their fees should be credited to those who paid for the project.

The Town will collect approximately $28,000 in fees from new properties to offset the construction costs. It is an appropriate fee as it is essentially the price each resident has paid. It is only fair the fees paid by the new properties be used to offset the cost of the project and hence credited to the original residents who paid for it. For the Town to save and use these fees to cover its expenses would not only be unfair, but would be ethically questionable. It is unfortunate that some townspeople wish to continue to use their authority to perpetuate the unfair actions that the Town took a number of years ago against the Little Harbor Sewer District.

Kevin McCarthy appreciates support

I would like to thank all my friends, neighbors and supporters that made it possible for me to win a Selectman seat last Saturday. I was truly fortunate to have your help and support. I also note that the campaign and the election turned out many new voters and participants in the political process. I urge you all to stay involved and seriously consider participating in some of the many committees that add so much to our town governance and civic life – or even run for office yourself. Bullets, bullies & faithful servants

JOE MCELROY

There are no winners – only losers – as political junkies orchestrate their hateful campaign tactics. These ruthless, self-serving egotists begin plotting their nefarious tactics immediately after each election. Subplots abound with ruthless individuals attempting to stack public offices with their "stalking horses." The voters are surrounded on all sides. Most of the "dirty tricks" happen during the days immediately preceding the election so that misinformation/dirty deeds cannot be exposed and refuted. The hapless electorate awakens to the disgusting machinations and each year – out of frustration – votes for change. Unfortunately, "change" does not equate to systemic, long-term improvements. It only means that the opposition will be back with a vengeance the next year.

The Mariner editorial decrying "bullet-voting" is noted; it criticizes asking voters to "bullet." I do not believe Fred asked for voters to "bullet," but I do not doubt that some of his supporters encouraged such a tactic. Fred Koed's campaign was attacked with sign vandalism and sleazy misrepresentations. Interestingly, I asked Diane, on Election Day, if her campaign and Kevin's were in cahoots. Diane unequivocally denied any collusion. I believe her, but I suspect she knew it was going on and did not actively discourage it. Four hours later – I received a "get out the vote" call from "Dean Realtors: 383-6010" with a woman stating that she was telephoning from the "McCarthy/Kennedy Campaign Headquarters." Like the tawdry sign outrage of last year, the bullies/political junkies of Cohasset subscribe to the "end justifies the means." So be it, Cohasset governance will lurch from one shameful episode to the next. May God help our newest Town Manager as egotists set out to micro-manage him.

Bottom-line: Your vote(s) are a privilege and responsibility of citizenship. It is normal and acceptable that voters cast their ballots to advance their beliefs and objectives. It matters not whether candidates and their minions ask you to "gag up on a candidate" or "bullet." Ultimately, you must analyze the merits of respective candidates and cast your vote(s) such as to advance your beliefs and objectives. "Bulleting" is a tactic. Skulking under the cover of darkness to vandalize signs or making misleading phone calls/signs are heinous acts.

I conclude with a personal message: Fred – I respect and agree with the importance of "process," but there is still room for thoughtful exceptions (ala appointment of a Bill Quigley as Police Chief). Your absence from the 2013 Annual Town Meeting was a huge mistake. That said, your decades of service to Cohasset (Water Department, Advisory Board, 15 years on the BOS, etc) far outweigh any mistakes. Thank you good and faithful servant.

School dept. lack of communication faulted

PATRICIA GILLIS

An open letter to the parents of the Cohasset public schools and Superintendent Barbara Cataldo.

Prior to April vacation and continuing through vacation seven Cohasset teachers and 50 students went abroad. I know most parents have no idea of the impact or of the length of the trip itself because if you did not have a child on the trip or in AP how else would you know. They expected to be informed beforehand, not after the fact, by the teachers and/or administration. This is the same administration and teaching staff that they support, entrust and value immensely. The impact of this trip was far reaching. Three hundred students plus were impacted greatly. We as parents have to notify the school when our children are going to be out, especially for long periods. Not to be notified by the teachers nor the administration is unacceptable and showed lack of respect.

The week prior to April vacation was filled with subs and with other teachers out sick, this led to even more subs. This created a rather chaotic environment. The majority of Cohasset High School students sat in class for four days with substitute teachers. The absence of that many teachers impacts any school greatly, especially a small school such as ours. Of the seven teachers that were on the trip, possibly one, valued the parents of their students enough to inform them that there would be a sub teaching their class for four days. Teenagers do not tell their parents anything...that is their nature...it is our job to have to find out the truth. So if the administration or the teaching staff expected a teenager to divulge info, it did not happen. Upon the Cohasset teachers return to school the AP and SATs exams were days away.

When questioned at two subsequent school committee meetings regarding the trip, the high number of teacher absences, and impact to almost every student in the high school Superintendent Barbara Cataldo was curt, dismissive and clearly uninformd. She did not even know how many trips there were. As Superintendent of the CMHS did she not think that this warranted her attention? Clearly she did not do her due diligence. This trip was approved at September 2012 school committee. That was the very same meeting that we were welcoming in a new Principal, Carolyn Connolly and Vice Principal, Brian Scott.

In the past, Superintendent Cataldo has been deemed "exemplary" in many categories by the majority, not all, of the school committee members. I think not.... An "exemplary" educator is concerned about all the students and does not blame others when things go wrong. They communicate. They own it. I do not know of another Superintendent who would have supported such a long trip without recognizing of the impact to the majority of the student body. I do not know of another Superintendent that would have not-notified parents. In this age of technology when the Superintendent could have used the blackboard connect to provide this information to parents. I believe she used this very technology to report of CHMS ranking's in US World Report. The students and parents are deserving of an apology from Superintendent Cataldo. The Superintendent and those teachers must not value the students and parents as not to inform the parents. Those 300 plus students will never get those days of learning back. Yet these very same parents are more than supportive, attentive, and appreciative of our teachers and administration. We deserve the same back. I realize that this was a huge gaffe, I have been informed by Principal Connolly that she has addressed this with her staff. Now it is time for the Superintendent Cataldo to address the Cohasset community. I expected that to happen at the May 7 school committee meeting. It did not.

I am a proud parent of three Cohasset students and just doing my job as a parent.

COMMENTARY

High marks for Sewer Commission

JOHN BECK

Given that we had a contested election for a position on the Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners, I thought the following, which I believe appropriately characterizes the performance of the Sewer Commission in recent years, would be of interest.

Rates: It has been seven years since the last increase (2007) in sewer rates at a time when other costs in Cohasset (e.g., real estate taxes) have escalated at a minimum of 2 to 3 percent each year.

Wastewater treatment plant (WWTP) operating contract: The contract with a previous operator was terminated and the new operator's contract has resulted in an annual savings for the users of at least $100,000/year. Cohasset's WWTP was recently recognized by the DEP as the best operating small sewage treatment plant in the

Little Harbor/ Atlantic

Avenue Project: This project provided the basis for settling the long-standing lawsuit against the Town of Cohasset by the state DEP. The project was safely completed on time and at a cost savings of over a million dollars less than the authorization voted by Town Meeting.

Budgets and Transparency: The sewer commission initiated a five-year rolling budget process and established special accounts to sequester funds for capital spending, betterment repayments and extraordinary maintenance needs. Disbursal of funds in these accounts requires Town Meeting approval.

Town-owned grinder pumps: The Commission established a program (after discussion of all the options at multiple public meetings) to ultimately replace all the grinder pumps installed during the previous "North Cohasset" sewer extension. At the end of this process the grinder pumps will become the property of the homeowners.

Infiltration and In-leakage (I&I) successes: Although there is no precise way to measure the effect of individual steps taken in this program, the cumulative savings of flow into the collection system is substantial. This reduction in flow translates directly to an increase in available capacity at the treatment plant.

Planning for WWTP capacity utilization: Strategic planning is underway to determine the optimum path for using any excess capacity at the treatment plant. This plan will consider such choices as extension of the current sewer districts, establishing new sewer districts, allowance for additional hookups required by law and processing North Cohasset wastewater flow in our treatment plant.

The event requires temporary night lighting, with the lights shutting off at approximately 10 p.m. Event chairman Derek Grudinskas said that the CYBSA has reached out to abutting neighbors who are "amenable to our request."

Center for Student Coastal Research spring, summer registration event

Family registration for spring and summer student research at CSCR will take place from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 20 at CSCR, 40 Parker Ave. This is a can't-miss registration event for everyone in the community.

Dr. Anamarija Frankic, the founder and director of the Green Harbors Project at UMass Boston will deliver a keynote address at 7 p.m. on biomimicry — the science of using oysters, for example, to clean up local waters. Dr. Frankic is a research professor at UMass Boston, adjunct professor at the Institute of Fisheries and Oceanography in Split, Croatia, and a Fulbright Scholar. Her work in the emerging field of biomimicry has led to successful restorations of coastal ecosystems throughout this area. She appeared on Public Radio International's Environmental News Program, "Living on Earth," on Saturday, Nov. 17, 2012, where she spoke about her ongoing research focused on sustainable designs in nature that can be used to produce solutions to various environmental, technological, and engineering problems. Pizza will be served for students and parents who come early to register and plan on staying through dinnertime for Dr. Frankic's dynamic presentation. A family membership fee of $275 entitles all students in a family to participate in all of CSCR's research and education programs for an entire year. Adults without student researchers in their households are also urged to become members of CSCR and are welcome to participate in CSCR's research programs, work alongside students, and share their enthusiasm for learning, their professional expertise, and their wisdom.

Registration and additional information about research programs are also available online at <http://ccscr.org/>. For more information about these projects or CSCR's Junior Marsh Monitor program, email Jack Buckley at jbuckley@ccscr.org

RELAY FOR LIFE BENEFIT

Sweet Relief to host book fair

Sweet Relief Nursery and Preschool, an early learning center in Cohasset will host its annual Osborne Book Fair from May 19 through May 21. The goal is to foster the love of reading among its preschool students while fundraising for the American Cancer Society's Relay For Life.

Sweet Relief is a home-based preschool environment enrolling students, ages 20 months to 4 years old. Sweet Relief is licensed through the State of Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care and provides the foundation that supports all children in their development as lifelong learners and contributing members of the community.

Lyn Congdon Previte, director and owner of Sweet Relief, is a 14-year cancer survivor and has led her Sweet Relief team of parents, students, community members and friends at the Cohasset ACS Relay team for many years. For the last four years, Sweet Relief has partnered with Osborne Books in an effort to raise the Sweet Relief Team's fundraising goal.

A percentage of the proceeds from the May 19 through 21 book fair at Sweet Relief will go to Sweet Relief's Team fundraising efforts for Relay for Life. An online book fair, accessible until May 30, will provide an opportunity for the entire community to purchase these award-winning books with full credit applied toward Sweet Relief's team fundraising goal. Community members interested in purchasing Osborne Books via the Sweet Relief Team webpage can visit m0581.myubam.com. Osborne books are written by educators and designed to graphically draw the students in, to make them want to learn the material on the pages and to help them retain that knowledge. With more than 1,300 titles to choose from, parents and educators are able to build an age-appropriate library for their children and students.

The American Cancer Society Relay for Life is a life-changing event that gives everyone in communities across the globe a chance to celebrate the lives of people who have battled cancer, remembering loved ones lost, and fight back against the disease. Teams participating in the Cohasset Relay, which will take place June 21 and 22 at Cohasset High School, will take turns walking or running around a track for 12 hours. Each team is asked to have a representative on the track at all times during the event.

Because cancer never sleeps, Relays are overnight events up to 12 hours in length.

"I am very passionate about involving our Sweet Relief students in our community service from a very early age," said Previte. "Each year, our Sweet Relief Relay for Life Team grows in participation, fundraising dollars and in the number of lives touched by the magnitude of realizing they are taking part in a very special event that is sure to make a difference in the fight against cancer. I am very proud of my students and their families, for making this such an important part of our community outreach curriculum component," Previte said.

Health board tackling tobacco regs

The Tuesday, May 13 Board of Health meeting was rescheduled to Tuesday, May 20. The board will discuss tobacco regulations and potentially adapting them, including a possible pharmacy sale ban and raising the legal purchasing age from 18 to 21, although in previous discussions the board did not seem to be leaning toward bumping the age up.

The tobacco regulation discussion is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

Also on Tuesday night's agenda: the board is in the process of updating its fee schedule for all its permits and administrative tasks. This will be discussed at 8:15. Board of Health

Agent and Administrator Felix Zemel explained that the board has "gone through a thorough evaluation of all permits we've issued to determine what the cost is to our town, and align permit fees to what it costs the town."

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on one roll call from the week of May 5-9. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

PROTECT DOMESTIC WORKERS (S 2132)

Senate 39-0, approved and sent to the House a bill establishing a bill of rights for domestic workers, defined as "an employee who performs work of a domestic nature within a household." These include employees who perform housekeeping, house cleaning, home management, nanny services, caretaking of sick or elderly individuals, laundering, cooking and home companion services. The bill establishes labor standards and protections in the domestic workplace. Provisions include requiring that a worker who puts in more than 40 hours per week be given a period of rest of at least 24 consecutive hours each week; mandating that all meal periods, rest periods and sleeping periods count as working time; ensuring that workers have a right to privacy; and requiring that female full-time workers receive at least eight weeks' maternity leave.

Supporters said it is long past time to ensure that these domestic workers have the same rights as all other workers across the state. They noted that these workers are an underserved group that is often overlooked.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

POSSIBLE 2014 BALLOT QUESTIONS - The Legislature has not acted by the May 6 deadline on several proposed 2014 ballot questions. This means that supporters of the questions must now collect 11,485 signatures by June 18, 2014 in order for the questions to appear on the November ballot.

Questions include repealing the 2013 law that creates automatic gas tax hikes by linking the tax to the U.S. Consumer Price Index, limiting the number of patients a nurse can care for at one time, expanding the state's existing beer and soda bottle deposit law to require a deposit on bottles of most other carbonated and non-carbonated beverages, hiking the minimum wage from $8 per hour to $10.50 per hour, requiring employers to give sick days to employees and penalizing hospitals that receive any state funds if they post profits above certain limits and/or pay their CEOs above certain limits.

The fate of a possible ballot question that would repeal the state's 2011 law allowing casino gambling is in limbo. Anti-casino forces are challenging a decision by Attorney General Martha Coakley that the repeal is unconstitutional and cannot appear on the ballot. The case was heard before the Supreme Judicial Court last week. The court has also allowed repeal supporters to attempt to collect the 11,485 additional signatures necessary to put the question on the ballot, in case the eventual court decision allows the question to move forward.

The voters in 2012 approved ballot questions that allow medical use of marijuana and require auto manufacturers to sell to non-dealer repair shops complete repair information and diagnostic tools. They rejected a proposal to allow terminally ill patients with fewer than six months to live to obtain medication they can self-administer to commit suicide.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE VIOLATIONS BY LOCAL OFFICIALS (H 3760) - The House and Senate have reached an agreement on a version of a bill imposing the same penalties on candidates for local office who violate campaign finance laws that are currently imposed on those for state and county office. The measure would prohibit a municipal candidate from appearing on the ballot if civil proceedings for failure to file his or her campaign finance reports on time have been initiated. Only final House and Senate approval are necessary before the measure goes to Gov. Deval Patrick.

Supporters said it is time to treat all candidates the same and remove this giant loophole that favors municipal candidates.

PROHIBIT SHACKLING OF PREGNANT INMATES (S 3978) - The two branches have agreed on a new version of a bill that would prohibit the shackling of a female prisoner during pregnancy, labor and delivery except to prevent her from escaping or seriously injuring herself or others. It would also establish minimum standards for the treatment and medical care of pregnant prisoners to promote safe and healthy pregnancy outcomes, including adequate nutrition and prenatal care. Only final House and Senate approval are necessary before the measure goes to Gov. Patrick.

Supporters said it is outrageous that shackling a female prisoner during birth is still legal in the year 2014. They argued it is long past time to approve this prohibition.

MIXED MARTIAL ARTS LICENSES FOR NON-CITIZENS (H 3946) - The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would make it easier for non-citizens to obtain a license to compete in mixed martial arts, boxing and kickboxing competitions in Massachusetts. Current law requires the fighter to obtain a social security number. The bill would allow the use of a form of identification "sufficient to identify the applicant."

Supporters said the social security number requirement discourages many major competitions from holding events in the Bay State because it is a long process to get a social security number. They noted that Massachusetts is one of the few states that require a social security number.

LOCAL DISABILITY COMMISSION MEETINGS (S 1985) - The House gave initial approval to a Senate-approved proposal allowing local commissions on disability to permit remote participation by commission members and others at any or all of their meetings. Under current law, only the attorney general can authorize remote participation.

Supporters said this would ensure that disabled people who have great difficulty getting to the meeting are afforded the opportunity to participate.

FIREFIGHTERS/POLICE OFFICERS AND SMOKING (H 2419) - The House gave initial approval to a proposal that would amend the current law providing for the automatic firing of any firefighter or police officer, hired after 1988, who is caught smoking. The bill would give the firefighter the option to keep his or her job if he or she enters a smoking cessation program. If the firefighter is caught smoking again, he or she would then be fired.

GREENBUSH

Lawmakers call for study on restoring weekend runs

By Ed Baker
ebaker@wickedlocal.com

The MBTA discontinued weekend commuter train service on the Greenbush and Old Colony Lines to close a projected $160 million deficit in July 2012, but a group of South Shore legislators wants the T to determine if it can resume rail operations on Saturdays and Sundays in an amendment to the proposed House budget.

Democratic state Rep. James Murphy of Weymouth said the amendment asks the MBTA to conduct a feasibility study of whether commuter rail service could be restored to the Old Colony and Greenbush lines.

"There is a high demand by weekend riders," he said. "There are people who work on the weekend who don't work the traditional nine-to-five hours. My colleagues and I are pushing the MBTA to come up with some figures that would allow for an expansion of service."

Democratic state Reps. Josh Cutler, James Cantwell, Thomas J. Calter and Rhonda Nyman and Republican state Rep. Viriato deMacedo authored the amendment.

MBTA spokesman Joseph Pesaturo stated the transportation agency has no opinion to offer on the proposed amendment.

Murphy said he has received a significant number of requests from constituents who want weekend commuter rail service restored.

"A lot of time and effort was put into restoring the Greenbush line," Murphy said.

The Greenbush has been in operation since October 2007

Murphy said the proposed amendment would require the MBTA to study the cost of restoring weekend rail service on both commuter lines and examine the amount of riders who used the weekend trains before the service was cancelled two years ago.

with stops in South Station, JFK-UMass, Quincy Center, Weymouth Landing, East Weymouth, Nantucket Junction, West Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate.

The Old Colony Line stops in Plymouth, Halifax, Hanson, Whitman, Abington, South Weymouth, Middleboro, Bridgewater, Brockton, Holbrook, Braintree, Quincy Center, JFK-UMass and South Station.

Murphy said the proposed amendment would require the MBTA to study the cost of restoring weekend rail service on both commuter lines and examine the amount of riders who used the weekend trains before the service was cancelled two years ago. The amendment also requests the MBTA determine what level of riders is needed on the commuter rails to restore weekend service.

Weymouth Town Council President Patrick O'Connor, legislative aide for Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund of Weymouth, said restoring commuter rail service on the weekends might be possible when there is a major sporting event being held in Boston.

Hedlund said he would support restoring weekend commuter rail service on the Greenbush on a trial basis.

"If the rider levels are not there it won't survive the trial period," he said. "If we get to the point of having service restored, we can't have empty trains running again."

Hedlund said he would like the House amendment to be changed to require a study of restoring weekend commuter boat service in Hingham and Hull as part of the evaluation. The weekend service was also eliminated in July 2012, but Pesaturo stated the MBTA would restore it Memorial Day weekend between Hingham-Hull and George Island Boston.

"The weekend service will be available through Columbus Day weekend," he stated.

Pesaturo stated additional information about the restoration of weekend commuter boat service is available online at mbta.com.

Hedlund said he believes the MBTA could readily produce statistics on how many riders were using the commuter boats and Greenbush rail on weekends before both services were eliminated.

"The T could provide that information minutes," he said.

Skippers edged in Border War

Hingham edges Cohasset in battle of title hopefuls

By Jay N. Miller
For the Patriot Ledger

The smaller school's team proved it can play top-quality lacrosse with anyone, while the larger school proved it does have better depth of talent and asserted that enough to control significant chunks of the second half.

Perennial Division 2 contender Hingham topped regular Div. 3 state title challenger Cohasset, 8-5, in boys lacrosse action on Monday. If both teams didn't exactly come away happy, the contest at least was a defensively oriented, tactical game that kept the hundred or so spectators fully engaged until the final whistle.

Both teams have outstanding faceoff men in Cohasset's Will Golden and Harborman John Meila, but with those two going head-to-head, the outcomes were pretty even, which was another factor that made it an extra-competitive game.

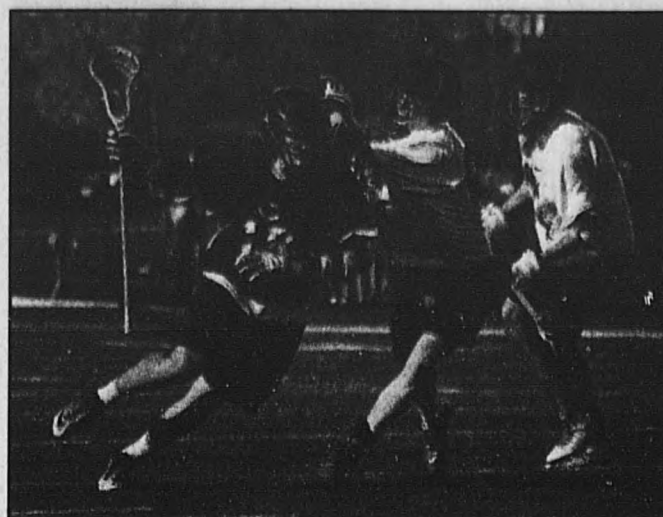

Hingham (12-5) led only 3-2 at halftime, thanks in part to some highlight-reel saves from Cohasset goalie

Jack Conte (the April Cohasset Mariner Athlete of the Month) late in the first half.

The Harbormen came out strong in the third quarter as Jake Brodie scored just 51 seconds in. Meila, whose regular position is long stick-middie, took the ball deep and scored at 2:15, and suddenly Hingham was up 5-2 and possessing the ball for long stretches.

"We made a couple of small adjustments at halftime," said Hingham coach John Todd, "and it was good

Skipper nine qualified for Tourney

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset baseball team has been getting the job done, including qualifying for the MIAA Tournament.

Even in losses, the team has looked pretty good.

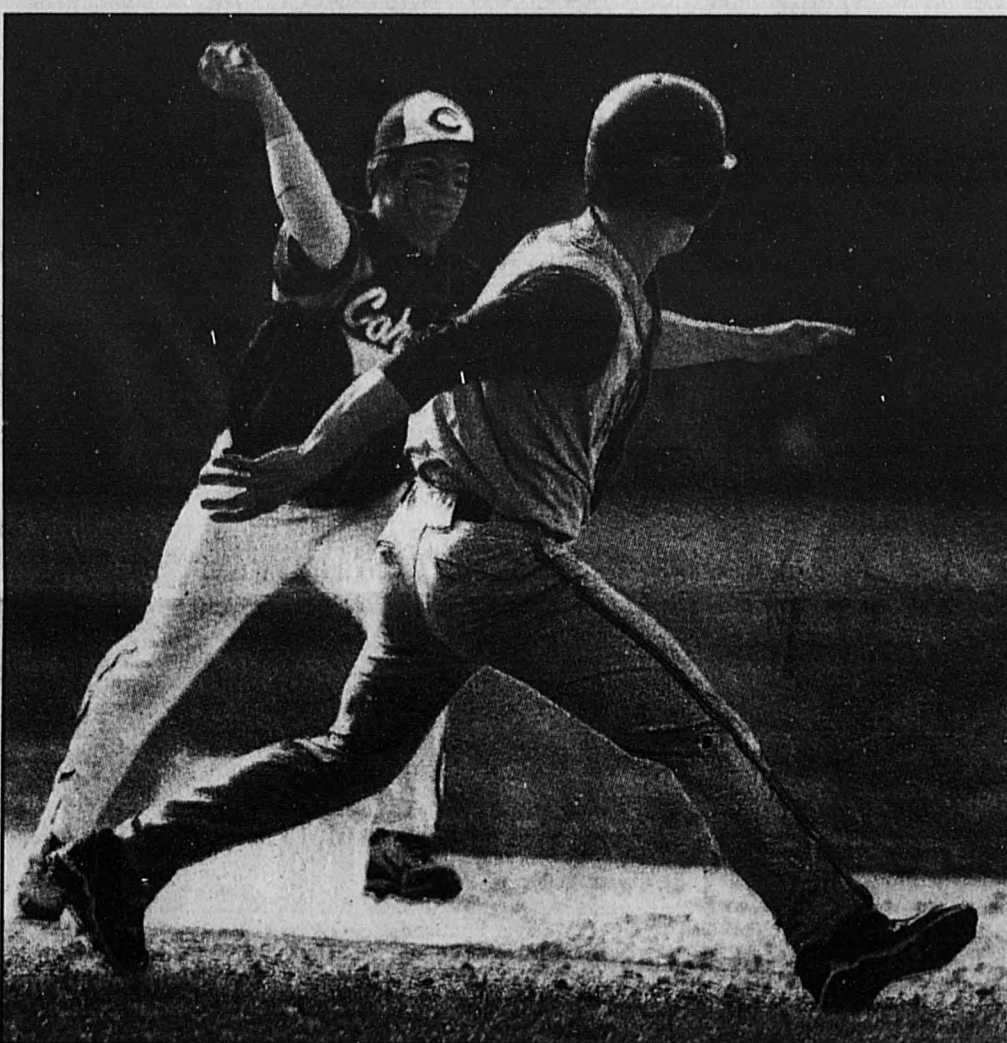

"Yesterday (Wednesday) we traveled to E-B and lost a hard fought game 5-4," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "Brendan O'Connell pitched five-plus solid innings but E-B tied the game in the sixth. Xander Schubert pitched very well in his 1 2/3 innings of relief. Both Brendan and Xander kept E-B to only four earned runs, a team that has been averaging more than 11 runs per game."

Cohasset struck first.

"Offensively, we jumped out to a 4-1 lead in the over the first two innings, and knocked E-B's ace Connor Gavin from the game in the second inning," Afanasiw said. "Tim Cavanaro kept up his blistering pace, going 3-for-4 and Nick Hall was 2-for-3 with two stolen bases. Jake Carey came in for E-B and pitched five dominant, shutout innings in relief, striking out six and working out of several jams in which we had men on base but just couldn't get that timely needed hit."

The Skippers started the week in style.

"On Monday we traveled to Hull and beat them 8-4," Afanasiw said. "Terence Doonan pitched six solid innings in his first start of the year, and Tommy O'Brien pitched a scoreless 1,2,3 seventh inning. Offensively, Brendan O'Connell was 3-for-4 with two huge triples, Tim Cavanaro was also 3-for-4, Colin Gideon-Murphy was 2-for-3 and Nick Hall was 2-for-4 to lead the way for the Skippers."

The Skippers followed that with an impressive win over Rockland.

"On Tuesday we defeated Rockland 2-1 in nine innings," Afanasiw said. "Ryan McKeeon pitched three strong innings, giving up one run, and Jack Chamberlain pitched six shutout innings in relief and picked up the win."

Chamberlain struck out four and scattered five hits in a game that could have gone either way.

"John Turned had a no-hitter against us into the sixth inning, when Mickey Barry laced a single to left," Afanasiw said. "Mickey took second on a passed ball, moved to third on Brett Doolley's single to left and scored the tying run on Chris Haggerty's RBI infield hit. In the bottom of the ninth, Nick Hall pinch hit for Haggerty, and stroked a single to left, then stole second base. Liam Burke sacrifice bunted Nick to third and Colin Gideon-Murphy drove home the winning run with a deep sacrifice fly to center."

Through Thursday, Cohasset checks in at 11-7 overall, 9-5 in the SSL, and have qualified for the tournament. They have two games left before the tournament.

"On Tuesday we will travel to Monomoy and then next Friday will be 'Senior Night' as we take on Mashpee at 4 p.m.," Afanasiw said.

Off the field, Cohasset will be busy as well.

The team will be canning at the town transfer station this weekend and will also be selling raffle tickets for four front row Red Sox tickets along with the Girls' Tennis team in combined fundraiser.

Skippers to host Scituate in final regular season tilt

On Monday, May 19 at 6:30 p.m., the Cohasset boys varsity lacrosse team will play Scituate in their last home game of the regular season.

This is a special night for the eleven seniors who will be recognized during the game in a senior night ceremony. The team is destined for the playoffs and hope the make it to Harvard again to play for the state title. With one of the deepest rosters in Cohasset history, the team has won all but three games so far and they are undefeated in their division.

This year Coach James Beaudoin assembled a committed and experienced staff who have played a critical part in the team's success.

Beaudoin, who himself played as a goalie for UVM, is the strategist. He knows where to apply the skills of his key players, including starters and a talented group of up and comers.

The offense is guided by Joe Donovan, who was a star in his youth and played for Duke. The defense is under the watch of assistant Coach Matt Belson; a product of Cohasset lacrosse who went on the play in Division 1 for Lafayette.

Beaudoin has a plan and is executing it to the detriment of Cohasset's opponents. But what is most notable is the depth of this years Cohasset team. It seems like every offensive player can score and create opportunities on the

Skippers to face Cambridge Warriors

Top Special Olympics Massachusetts team to host Cohasset High boys basketball team

The 2013-14 Cohasset Boys Basketball team will participate in a "Unified Basketball Event" with the Cambridge Warriors, Massachusetts' top Special Olympics Team on Sunday, June 1st, at 1 p.m. at the Yawkey Sports Training Center just off Rt. 495 in Marlborough (512 Forest St., Marlborough).

The Cambridge Warriors have qualified to compete against the top teams from other states in the upcoming Special Olympics U.S.A. Games, June 14 - 21 in New Jersey. They will be part of the Massachusetts delegation of 68 athletes and 25 coaches in 12 sports.

The Warriors look forward to hosting the Cohasset boys in a fun afternoon series of events including "The Game", a unified game, a clinic, and a unified basketball skills competition. The Game itself will help prepare the Warriors for their USA Special Olympics competition in June. The "Unified Game", with members of both teams combining into two mixed teams competing together, will give the Cohasset players an opportunity to mix in basketball competition, and the "Unified Fun Clinic" will have pairs of athletes competing in various contests including 3-point shooting, dribbling, and foul shooting.

The Yawkey Sports Training Center is the headquarters for 12,000 athletes of Special Olympics Massachusetts, and features a state-of-the-art gymnasium. The gym has the same hi-tech sports floor as the Celtics' Waltham Training Facility, the only other like it in the State!

It promises to be a great opportunity for both teams, and all are welcome as spectators.

GIRLS LACROSSE

On the road again

Laxwomen battle top teams

The Cohasset Mariner

The Cohasset girls' lacrosse team was on the road again last Thursday to play the No.1 ranked D2 team, Medfield, and found themselves in a hole as they fell behind 3-0 early before rallying to take the lead 8-7 behind goals by Kathryn Dunn, Maddie Curley, Marina Longo, Mackenzie Axelson and Corey Golden. The Skippers stayed close throughout the second half but Medfield took control late and won 15-10.

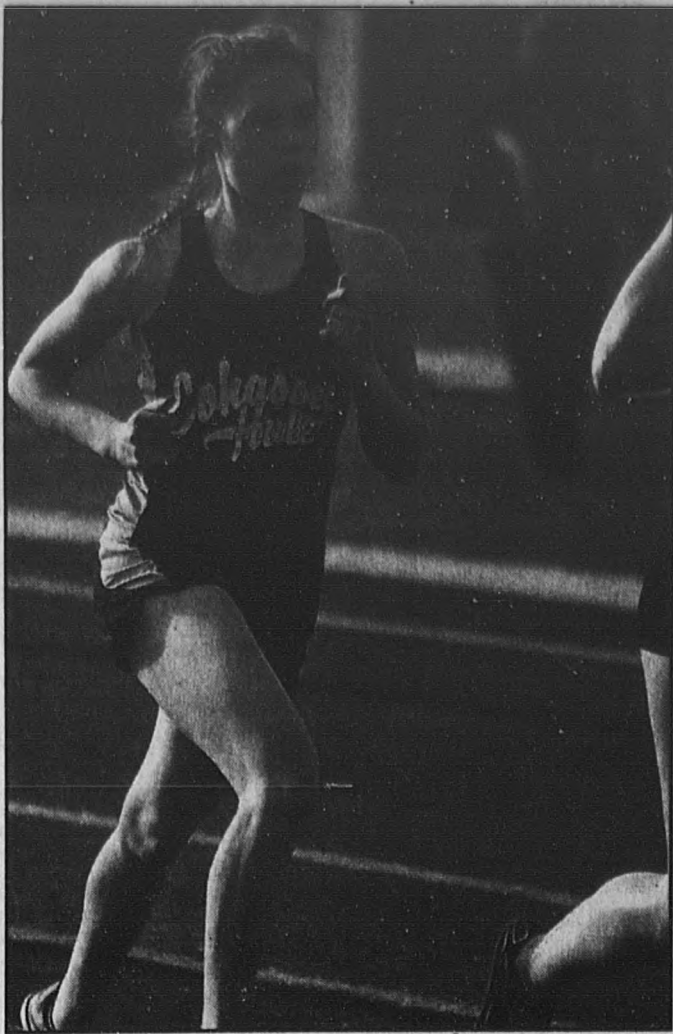

Cohasset finally came back home to play at Alumni field after several long road trips and blew out Marshfield 21-9. The game was relatively close for the first 10 minutes but goalie Taylor Frederick (8 saves) and the defense of Molly and Megan Fitzgerald, Kyle Burke, Caty Gilman, Caroline Prescott and Megan McElgunn clamped down on the Rams attack.

The offense got rolling and the scoring was spread amongst nine different players with Maddie Curley (4 goals, 1 assist), Kathryn Dunn (4 goals, 2 assists), Mackenzie Axelson (3 goals, 1 assist) and Caelin McDonald (3 goals) leading the way.

The Skippers went back on the road Wednesday for a short trip to rival Hingham and once again fell behind in the first half by a seemingly insurmountable 11-1 score.

Cohasset's Lily Astino waits for the baton in the second leg of the 4x400 relay in a recent meet against Norwell.

The Cohasset/Hull track and field team recently hosted Norwell, with the boys winning 80-55, and the girls losing 79-57. Here is a look at the action, courtesy of our friends in Cohasset.

In more recent action, the tracksters split with Carver. The girls lost 77-59, while the boys won 89-48. For the girls against Carver, Alexa Perez (400m, long jump) and Molly MacNamara (200m, triple jump) were double-winners for Cohasset/Hull (4-4). Also finishing first: Maddy MacNamara (javelin), Kate Gibbons (mile), Maria Waters (high jump) and the 4x100m relay team of Kate Broderick, Emily Rosano and Maddy and Molly MacNamara.

On the boys side against Carver, Christian Fuda won the 110-meter hurdles, triple jump and long jump, and Vinny Smyth took the 100m and 200m for Cohasset/Hull (7-1). Other winners: Julien Geyer (javelin), Dan Toomey (2-mile) and Elijah Pontes (400m).

Cohasset/Hull also won the 4x100m relay (Aaron Lanner, Colin Brookbank, Steven Maher, Alex Murphy) and the 4x400m relay (Denver Lincoln, Anthony Rivieccio, Sean Smyth and Pontes).

field.

In years past, it was typical to see a team as the supporting cast of two to three prime players. Not this year. Beaudoin's plan is to run the plays, use every man on the field and develop the team. He has declined opportunities to run-up the score when opposing weaker teams, instead choosing to bring in younger players early in the game.

The defense is in a word, stacked.

There are six players, each of whom can start any game, with a few younger players seeing a lot of playing time. The only time we see crease penetration is from a highly talented and quick attackman.

Midfielders are no match for Cohasset's strong defensive midfielders and long poles. By all accounts, this team has a great chance in the playoffs and making it to the "Big Dance."

So please come out to watch the game, under the lights on Cohasset's Alumni field at 6:30 pm, Monday, May 19.

This will be a great night for youth players to see some great lacrosse and for any and all families who have enjoyed watching the game.

to see them paying off like that. We got some good early looks at the net there in the third quarter, and before the quarter was over we had two long-stick goals. We have some very athletic defenders, and I think whenever your long sticks score, it can be demoralizing for the other team."

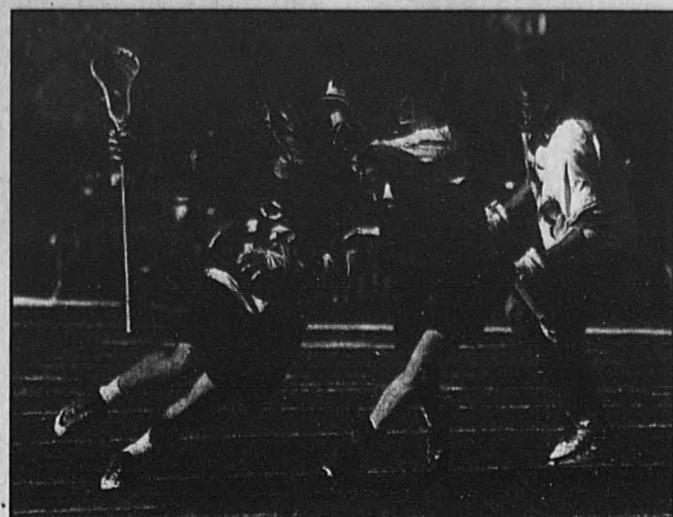

Cohasset (13-3) pulled within 5-3 on a goal from Golden, but Brodie struck twice more for a 7-3 lead after three quarters.

Brodie finished with four goals for Hingham. Marc O'Rourke added two, and Mark Rosso and Meila had the others. Goalie Jack Santilli played well for the Harbor-men.

Cole Kissick and Golden had two goals each for Cohasset, which got a single tally from Matt Arnold.

All in all, a good test for both sides, and fine preparation for the upcoming state playoffs.

"We haven't really faced a competitive game like this for a while, which hurt us," noted Cohasset coach James Beaudoin. "We had one recent game where we were up 11-0 in the first quarter, and another that was 16-1 at the half. It's hard to go from that to defending against a Hingham, which has six pretty good kids on offense."

"I think the two teams matched up pretty well," Beaudoin continued, "considering they're a much bigger school. I think our defense could play with their attack, and our goalie was astounding today. But, just like our game with Duxbury, we basically lost it today in the midfield, where they are stronger."

Said Todd: "We expected a game this close with Cohasset. Their goalie definitely played a great game for them, and kept it close. I think this was a good game for us because they forced us to play defense, and forced us to play four solid quarters."

Both teams have three games left in the regular season. Cohasset hosts Bridgewater-Raynham at 7 p.m. Saturday in a special charity game.

GIRLS LAX

Goalie Taylor Frederick (15 saves) played her best game of the season and kept the gap from being even larger. The Hingham center was dominating the draw until Marina Longo helped the Skippers gain some critical possessions and finish the first half with a two goal run as Caelin McDonald scored and Mackenzie Axelson fired one home off a great feed from Longo.

The second half started with a quick Hingham goal to increase the lead to 12-3 before Cohasset would finally find their stride and dominate the remainder of the game. Molly Fitzgerald began marking the Hingham center one on one and completely shut her down which sparked the offense to score several quick goals. McDonald would score twice during the run with single goals from Kathryn Dunn, Maddie Curley and Corey Golden to cut the deficit to 13-8. The Skippers had several other good scoring chances but could not get any closer before losing 14-8.

Molly Fitzgerald caused six turnovers and had six ground balls on the day and would break her own single season caused turnover record with 56 on the season. The Skippers are now 10-6 on the season with two regular season games against Weston on Saturday and Scituate on Wednesday before the MIAA tournament begins.

CHARITY GOLF

Joe Andruzzi Golf Tournament

Joe Andruzzi Hits the Links for Cancer Patients at Sixth Annual Golf Tournament

New England pro athletes and celebrities will tee off to raise money for cancer patients and their families at Pinehills Golf Club (Plymouth, MA) on Monday, June 30 for the Sixth Annual Joe Andruzzi & Friends Golf Tournament. Hosted by three-time Super Bowl Champion and cancer survivor, Joe Andruzzi, his wife Jen, executive director of the Joe Andruzzi Foundation (JAF), and Patriots co-captains Rob Ninkovich and Matthew Slater, the tournament will raise funds and awareness to support the Foundation's mission of providing help, hope and a reason to smile for patients and their families when it is needed most.

"We are extremely excited to be entering into the sixth year of our annual golf tournament," said Andruzzi, co-founder of JAF. "This summer tradition is a special one for us as it brings athletes and celebrities together in support of our mission, which in turn allows us to pay-it-forward to so many patients in need throughout the region."

In the past, the tournament has been supported by local and familiar faces, including Vince Wilfork, Rob Gronkowski, Julian Edelman, Teddy Bruschi and local comedian Lenny Clarke, among others. This year's attendees can plan for more of the same, as a robust turnout of area athletes and celebrities is anticipated.

Last year's tournament raised a record of $278,000, and proceeds from this year's event - presented by JAF-supporter East Commerce Solutions, Inc. - will once again allow JAF to help alleviate cancer's financial and emotional impact on patients, as well as fund critical pediatric cancer research at Boston Children's Hospital.

"The support we receive from our friends and family, as well as our presenting sponsor East Commerce Solutions, Inc., allows us to assist a growing number of patients and continue to spread our upbeat mission," said Jen Andruzzi. "Each year we become increasingly grateful for the active participation in our tournament, and we hope to have others join us out on the links for a great day in the name of charity."

The Joe Andruzzi & Friends Golf Tournament will return to Pinehills Golf Club for the second year in a row. The premier club, rated one of the "Top 10 You Can Play" by Golf Magazine, boasts two separate 18-hole championship courses. Golfers will hit the links at 10 a.m., playing a "scramble" format - where foursomes tee off, then choose the best of the groups shots for the next shot. All golfers then play the second shot from that location, and again choose the best shot. This process is continued until the ball is holed.

While fundraising will be primarily supported through a variety of tournament sponsorship levels, the Foundation has created another opportunity for supporters and participants to donate. Priceless sports memorabilia, entertainment packages and other prizes will all be up for bid onsite during silent and live auctions. Event prizes and giveaways have traditionally included autographed sports gear, tickets to Boston sporting events, luxurious catered meals and more.

The tournament schedule of events is as follows:

8:00 a.m. Registration & Continental Breakfast
10:00 a.m. Shotgun Start (Scramble Format)
12:00 p.m. Lunch on the Course
4:00 p.m. Cocktail Reception, Silent Auction & Presentation of Prizes
5:00 p.m. Dinner, Guest Speaker & Live Auction
6:00 p.m. Conclusion of Festivities

To inquire about playing in the tournament, contact Gillian Furey at golf@joeandruzzi-foundation.org. Registration is also available online at <http://bit.ly/JAFGolf14>.

About The Joe Andruzzi Foundation

The Joe Andruzzi Foundation was founded in 2008 to help cancer patients and their families make critical mortgage, rent and utility payments during financially-challenging times, and to fund pediatric brain cancer research. It also provides patients with social and emotional support and acts as a general resource for families. Joe Andruzzi, a former offensive guard with the New England Patriots, was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's Burkitt's Lymphoma in 2007 and was treated at Boston's Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women's Hospital. Disease-free less than a year later, Joe dedicated his life to supporting other cancer patients and funding life-saving research. The Joe Andruzzi Foundation is Joe and his wife Jen's second philanthropic effort; in 2003, they started the C.J. Buckley Brain Cancer Research Fund at Boston Children's Hospital in memory of C.J. Buckley.

Kelly honored again

Former Skipper named ECAC All-New England first team

Bates College Athletics

Bates senior Meredith Kelly received 2013-14 postseason accolades for a fifth time on Thursday, as the Eastern College Athletic Conference named the Bobcat senior to its First Team All-New England Division III squad.

Last month, Kelly captured both First Team All-Conference and NESCAC Defensive Player of the Year honors from the New England Small College Athletic Conference. The 5-foot-8 guard became the first player to lead the NESCAC in scoring and win Defensive Player of the Year accolades in the same year. She later received recognition from D3Hoops.com (First Team All-Northeast), the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association

(First Team All-State) and the New England Women's Basketball Association (First Team All-New England).

Kelly (Cohasset, Mass.) averaged 21.6 points per game, a whopping 5.7 points more than any other NESCAC player, setting Bates' team records for points in a season (518), game (42) and half (25). She added a career-high 6.0 rebounds per game and ranked fifth in the conference in free-throw percentage, at a career-best .801. Kelly also added the 3-pointer to her offensive repertoire this season, hitting 21-of-74 shots from behind the arc (.284) after entering the season a career 3-for-17 (.176).

Bates' premier defender for the past four seasons and the 2011 NESCAC Rookie of the Year, Kelly led the league in steals this season, with 2.83 per game, and grabbed a career-high 6.0 rebounds per game, including 3.2 on the defensive glass. She often guarded the opponent's best player and proved indefatigable despite averaging 36.6 minutes and not missing a game. She is the first Defensive Player of the Year in team history.

Kelly missed the first eight games of her junior season due to injury, but still finished seventh on Bates' all-time scoring list, with 1,207.

Kelly will also be a NESCAC Winter All-Academic selection for maintaining a cumulative grade point average of 3.35 or above. During the season she was selected to participate in the Women's Basketball Coaches Association's "So You Want to be a Coach" program.

Five Tips to Land a Great Summer Camp Job

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

1. Do your research. It's impossible to get a real feel for a camp without physically being there, but there are plenty of ways to filter your search. Is it a specialized or general program? What specialized skills do you have to offer? What is the camp culture like? How is the day structured? Most camps can tell you all that with one email or phone call. What's the level of connection to the outside world - utter woody isolation, or occasional Internet and phone access? Camp directors want to hire counselors whose needs fit the mission and strengths of their camps, which they prominently display on their websites, pamphlets, and even social media.

2. Utilize web resources, but have real conversations too. Check the "Jobs" section at www.acanewengland.org for a continually updated list of open positions from New England's ACA Accredited camps. If you're expanding your search beyond New England, you can post your resume on the national ACA job site at accamps.org/jobs - summer-jobs. However, if you're seriously interested in a camp, make contact by phone or in person. Camp is personal, and web interactions won't let you character or that of your future employer shine through.

3. Write a resume that presents a strong background in organization, team building and cooperation. Whether you have previous camp experience or not, you should gear your resume and other application materials towards these core values of camp. Even a job scooping ice cream includes fluid customer service, collaboration with co-workers, and a playful attitude.

4. Draw on personal experiences. Before interviewing, think about who your role models were growing up. If you went to camp, what were your best counselors like? Channel these people as you talk to camp directors and hiring managers, remembering how they made your childhood summers special and how you can "pay it forward" to a new generation of campers.

5. Radiate enthusiasm! High spirit is the glue that holds all camps together. Don't let the hiring process make you nervous or timid, show directors just how much you want to enrich the lives of children through quality camp experience and you should have no problem landing a fantastic job this summer.

Provided by the American Camp Association, New England, a 501 (c)3 organization that serves as the region's leading source for "all things summer camp." Families and camp professionals in CT, MA, ME, NH, RI & VT can visit www.acanewengland.org or call (781) 541-6080 for help finding a camp or for additional information and resources.

Show & Teller

The illusionist puts the magic in 'The Tempest'

Teller promises that he'll use magic to "clarify and illuminate" the story of "The Tempest," when the American Repertory Theater presents his production from May 10 to June 15 at the Loeb Drama Center in Cambridge. But why should we believe him? He's a fake, a charlatan, a con man. Far from clarifying or illuminating anything, he's made a career out of deceiving us. Heck, he doesn't even use his full name.

Teller, the shorter and quieter half of the hip (if that's possible) magic duo Penn & Teller, is currently helping Prospero, Shakespeare's aging magician, cast his spells in "The Tempest." Teller is convinced a few well-placed illusions will illuminate the Bard's play for a modern audience. He's already done it once with that Shakespearean supernatural thriller,

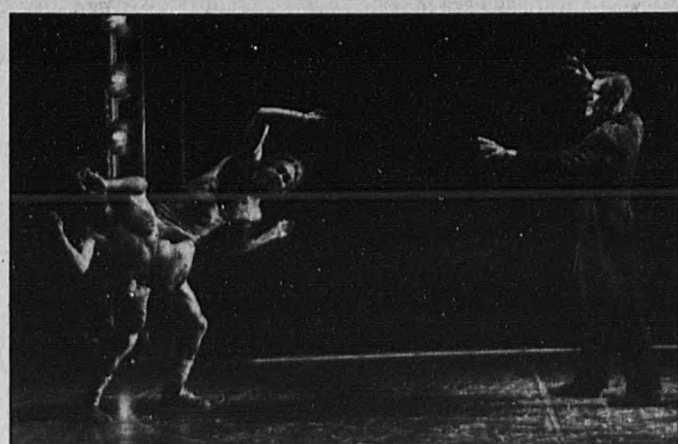

"Macbeth."

"The Macbeths can't really tell where reality ends and illusion begins," says Teller, on the phone from his home in Las Vegas, where "The Tempest" prepped in advance of its ART run. "The play is filled with hallucinations. So the magic that we added became a clarification, an enhancement [of their state of mind]. The power of [Shakespeare's] words remained the same, but the magic provided a visual reinforcement. By the time Lady Macbeth killed herself, her suicide made complete sense."

His task is slightly different in "The Tempest," where Prospero conjures up a storm to wreck a ship carrying the brother who usurped Prospero's position as duke. Once he has his brother on the island, the magician will exact his revenge. Much like Teller in performance, Prospero uses his tricks to bend his captive audience to his will.

"Prospero has a brother who has wronged him, and now Prospero is pulling out all the stops to scare the [crap] out of him," says Teller, who then quotes a line from the play. "Mine enemies are all knit up in their distractions."

And leave it to a magician to find the method in Prospero's madness. Teller notes, "Unlike a villain using magic in a 'Harry Potter' movie, Prospero never does anything physical to anyone. His illusions are rooted in the guilty conscience of his victims. For example, he'd never crush anyone; he'd just make them believe that the ceiling was closing down on them."

That level of analysis suggests Teller takes this new role seriously. In addition to "Magic by Teller," his credits in this production are co-adaptor and co-director (along with Aaron Posner, who also directed that production of "Macbeth"). An example of Teller's contribution: He pushed for Caliban to be performed by multiple actors. And he clearly tries to be true to the psychology of the character as he crafts their illusions.

In fact, actor Tom Nelis, who plays Prospero, received a bit of helpful advice that could only have come from Teller. In a beautiful and touching scene at the end of the play, Prospero relinquishes his magic. Only Teller, who, in his mid-60s, still performs regularly with partner Penn in Las Vegas, could explain to Nelis just how big a sacrifice that would be.

"That's been the core of my discussions with Tom since we began working on the show," says Teller. "Prospero gives up his magic for the sake of his daughter. Tom also has a daughter. So I told him to imagine that in order to do right by your daughter, you have to give up acting forever. He understood that."

This production hardly belongs to just Posner, Teller and Nelis. In fact, it's got an embarrassment of riches when it comes to the creative team. Matt Kent, associate artistic director of the esteemed dance company Pilobolus, directs the movement in the show. And the music is provided by Tom Waits and his collaborator (and wife), Kathleen Brennan. Waits essentially opened up his vault of songs for the production.

"It was like Bach saying, 'You can use anything from my cantatas,'" says Teller.

The show also has the backing of the ART, and Teller sounds somewhat awed by Diane Paulus, artistic director at ART, and her understanding of how to make plays. In a theater world where the pressures of time and money often crush creativity, she's provided a chance for this production to breathe.

"About two years ago, the ART took up our cause," says Teller. The show has slowly come to life since then "because of the smart way ART does these things," he adds. "It's not a short development process."

Teller admits his own development may have been arrested, in some ways, about 50 years ago.

"At about the age of 8 to 12, you realize it's possible to not tell the truth," says Teller, trying to explain his psychological need to mess with people. "There's a fascination and power in lying. But if you're a moral person, you can't do it in everyday life. So the perfect place to do it is in the cinema or the theater."

As for this piece of theater, Teller believes it will blow the dust off Shakespeare and give "The Tempest" a new energy.

"When I go to the theater, I want to laugh, and I want the hairs to stand up on the back of neck," he says. "That's what I'm trying to do with this show."

In 2009, Massachusetts enacted a "Move Over" law to require drivers to switch lanes, when available, when approaching a stopped emergency vehicle or to slow down. COURTESY PHOTO

Last Thursday Ports & Co. hosted "An Inspirational Fashion Show" to benefit the Jett Foundation (www.jettfoundation.org) of Kingston. Well-known members of the South Shore struttin' the runway at the Red Lion Inn Barn, along with four Cohasset High School students and a mom whose son has Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy, the disease the Jett Foundation is fighting to end.

Emcee Susan Wornick, who recently retired after 34 years at WCVB Channel 5, kept the crowd laughing. Christine McSherry, Executive Director of the Jett Foundation, told of the organization's recent success. Sarepta Therapeutics, based out of Cambridge, has a drug that has proven successful in a human trial. McSherry has spent the last year advocating for the drug's approval and just recently received the news that the FDA has given the go ahead for the company to file for a New Drug Application. This is the first step on the path to approval.

The fashion show helped raise much needed funds that will help that will support programs for those affected by the disease, and the money needed to get a drug or therapy to the patients who need it as soon as possible.
